COMFORT, VERSATILITY AND STRENGTH.

Designed for comfort, versatility and strength, the S.O.TECH Mission Go Bag fulfills multiple mission requirements. It can easily be reconfigured as a shoulder bag and with a fold over and a snap it converts into a waist/fanny pack that rides below body armor (Patent Pending). Stowing the shoulder straps in the rear pocket configures the bag as a briefcase utilizing stowable carrying handles or as a large vest pouch for front or back wear using the PALS/MOLLE compatible Flex-Tab™ attachment system (U.S. Patent Pending). These tabs can also secure the bag to a larger pack. A contoured shoulder strap, padded back plate and sleek design with rounded edges provide comfort required for long missions. Thick shoulder straps, reinforced attachment points and large buckles provide durability required in modern combat environments, while economic use of high-tech materials minimizes the bag weight as part of the soldier's load. Logically placed and enlarged buckles and zipper pulls provide ease of operation in stressful operations and inclement weather.

ABILITY TO FACILITATE NUMEROUS MISSIONS.

The Mission Go Bag received its name because of its ability to facilitate numerous missions – survival go bag, medical bag, explosive breacher bag, sniper bag, EOD tech bag, tool bag, and laptop bag (designed for Military Issue Panasonic Toughbooks and others of similar size, 10.7" wide x 8 1/2" tall x 1.9" thick). The bag is equipped with a large zippered main compartment and a bellowed zippered front pocket. The main compartment has four draw corded pouches, a flat pouch and a tape dispenser. Bag dimensions: 10 1/4" tall x 11 1/2" wide x 4 1/2" deep.
